To whom this may concern

I am proposing I know on behalf of 1000'S of other Australia's to continue to have access to Homeopathic medicine in Australia and to still be able to choose my own form of adjunction healthcare.

We have been using these medicines for the past 11 years as a family and have seen the benefits from homeopathy especially when treating our children for sickness and it has prevented them from getting more unwell and possibly having to go down the road of a few operations if I had not use homeopathic medicines.

We as Australians should be able to have the options of alternate medicines for our families and not have those rights taken away to choose what we know is best and beneficial for our own families and their long term health.

I strongly support option 1 and are strongly not in favor of option 4

Regards
