

To Whom it May Concern,

Support for Homeopathy as it is TODAY:

I am horrified to hear that we in Australia are going the same ways the USA with it's blinkered attitude to health.

I would urge you to consider the human rights issues that comes with denying people the right to look after their own health with no professional intervention.

I strongly agree with options 1 and 2 of the proposed considerations of the TGA, that would leave Homeopathic goods unchanged in their availability to those who wish to access them. And I disagree with options 3 and 4 which look sadly as if we are sliding towards the US floundering model of forced medication, vaccination and massive pharmaceutical companies in the controlling seat.

It is a first step in the absolute WRONG direction.

I am a healthy adult. I have three children between 21 and 16 years of age. I have two University qualifications, I am not stupid. I also do NOT have a GP, nor have had any health care professional in my life for the last 15 years. I have never even in that time taken a paracetamol or similar. I take responsibility for my own health and see the role of the Health industry as for Accident and Emergency only. I would conclude by drawing your attention to the face that I am NO strain on Government Health Finances nor intent to be.

Regards
