

I support Option 1 – Maintain the status quo regulation of homoeopathic products.

I have been a user of homoeopathic products for over 25 years, both when I lived in the UK and for the last 7 years in Australia. I have always found homoeopathic products to be efficacious for treatment at home of minor illnesses and conditions and has always been a very safe alternative to conventional treatment.

I have used homoeopathic products within my extended family on adults, babies and children and have successfully relieved the symptoms of minor illnesses/conditions and emotional stresses and strains using homoeopathy. I have also successfully used homoeopathic products on my pets (which aren't subject to the placebo effect!) and in the garden to increase the health of my plants.

Currently homoeopathic products are an easily available and safe option. Please leave the regulations as they currently stand.
