

Australian Government

OFFICIAL

Australian Digital Health Agency

The Australian Digital Health Agency (the Agency) strongly supports the Therapeutic Goods Administration's (TGA) proposed introduction of a Unique Device Identifier (UDI) system. The introduction of a UDI will improve the traceability of medical devices across the Australian healthcare landscape, benefitting all stakeholder groups involved in the supply chain and in clinical processes. It also will ensure that the data exchanged between organisations and systems is consistent, supporting the interoperability framework for healthcare in Australia, one of the key pillars of Australia's National Digital Health Strategy.

The Agency is committed to working closely with the TGA on this important reform.